

Regional

INDEX-JOURNAL

FLIGHT FIGHT

■ BO BOWMAN

Angel Flight director speaks

Bo Bowman, S.C. Branch Director for Angel Flight Soars, Inc., recently spoke to Greenwood's Star Fort Chapter of the Military Officers Association of America about the role and contributions of Angel Flight.

BO BOWMAN

Bowman coordinates all Angel Flight public awareness, fundraising, and pilot recruitment activities for the entire state of South Carolina.

An experienced private pilot, he discussed how Angel Flight pilots provide free transportation to individuals

STAFF PHOTOS BY SAM O'KEEFE

Pilots were given three attempts to land as close to the line of flour on the runway before averaging the distance for their final score.

EAA S.C. branch director Bo Bowman, left, and Airwolf flight instructor Michele Rash, right, watched the airplanes' tires to mark their landing spots for each attempt.

Pilots compete in an attempt to land closest to a line of flour at the EAA flight competition. Ten contestants showed up, along with S.C. branch director Bo Bowman to mark landings.

From left: Bo Bowman, director of the S.C. branch of the Experimental Aircraft Association, stands with the winners of Saturday's spot landing competition at the Greenwood County Airport. Randy McLean placed third, Roy Wilbanks and co-pilot Palmer Mason took first, and John Hornbeck and his son Mathew placed second in the field of 10 competitors.

unable to travel long distances for special medical care. Angel Flight also brings supplies to areas struck by disasters such as hurricanes and tornadoes, and reunites families during desperate times.

Angel Flight is a non-profit organization supported entirely by donations. To request an Angel Flight mission, donate, or volunteer, call 554-3198 or visit www.AngelFlightSoars.org.